

From: [REDACTED]
Sent: Tue, 25 Sep 2018 19:02:46 +0000 (UTC)
To: [REDACTED]
Subject: OXTodAAAAAE-2018.09.25

DEFENDANT A	United States District Court Northern District of California
	Case No. 4:20-cv-05640-YGR
	Case Title Epic Games, Inc. v. Apple, Inc.
	Exhibit No. DX-3129
	Date Entered _____
	Susan Y. Soong, Clerk
	By: _____, Deputy Clerk

[REDACTED] 2018-09-25T19:02:46.060Z

Have we ever talked to Sony Microsoft or Nintendo about subscription costs? Apple and Google offer 15% for recurring subs.

[REDACTED] 2018-09-25T19:03:11.822Z

nope - don't even think they have an option to do it

[REDACTED] 2018-09-25T19:03:44.700Z

We could save hundreds of millions if we push them to offer it.

[REDACTED] 2018-09-25T19:27:44.255Z

That's one of those things we could not get them to do.

[REDACTED] 2018-09-25T19:28:10.626Z

Would likely be at a console boundry, where they embrace F2P

[REDACTED] 2018-09-25T19:28:31.657Z

Could be PS5 - we have input through the visits

[REDACTED] 2018-09-25T19:29:11.850Z

Yup. Good topic for future. Clearly other big platforms find value in recurring revenue.

[REDACTED] 2018-09-25T22:20:28.377Z

oh yeah, i got an offthread polite "we're thinking about it" from SIEE today.